Beware of any links shared. They're desperate and malicious.

There's a lot of potential for communication to be disrupted, accidentally or maliciously.

Something that allows communication to continue without an active internet/cell connection will be extremely useful

https://bridgefy.me/demo-app/

Why does it say this:

> To make sure someone else can receive your Bridgefy messages, check that the following are true:

> That person is within 330 feet of you

Makes it sound like it has no actual mesh network functionality and is just a walkie talkie basically

Also note:

> The Bridgefy messaging app is currently undergoing a series of security and privacy improvements. Sometime during October 2020, we will publish a version of the Bridgefy app that will be extremely safe and private. For the time being and until further notice, we urge users to be cautious when using the Bridgefy app, as outside actors may interfere with it in unfavorable ways for users.

Does it just allow 1-1 chats, or chat groups, or...?

Would be nice if everyone showed up with this installed. Is there an easy way to distribute the APK offline if only 0.01% show up with this installed and it needs to be installed offline by people first hearing about it the day of?

Because if only two people have the app, those two need to be within 330 feet of someone else that has the app.

If they shut down ALL the bridges to ALL traffic, I will rent a doggamned KAYAK & and drag myself across the river on ropes.

Nothing will stop me.

Spez: My God, I'm an autist and a dyslexic!

Spez again: Well, Doggos is a mod & mods are gods, so if it fits, it sits. ¯\(ツ)/¯

Surround the Capitol.

If they only answer to fear, we will give it to them.

What else do you suggest for people organising? Telegram is great, any the users have even made sub groups, but if it's a free chat it will inevitably get overwhelming and spammed.

I'm not sure what the problem would be there. You could try the webchat?

https://webchat.ircnet.net/

Edit: they have two different servers, one with SSL and one without.

Is telegram safe? I don't want my account banned like what happened to the discord group.

2

Yeah, Telegram is much better in regards to privacy and freedom.

Remember you can mute Telegram chats then check them in your own time.

They can quickly get overwhelming, especially when people start spamming.

You could give newcomers test questions that would either normally be asked by someone redpilled trying to redpill someone else, or a truthful question where the answer could be viewed as negative toward Trump. If they don't know the answer to the redpill question and/or they try to answer untruthfully to the other question because they think you want an answer that's positive toward Trump, those would be red flags.
